NEWSLETTER FOR TSUD FACULTY AND STAFF

TECHNO-TEAM FORGES AHEAD WITH NETWORK PROJECT

TSUD is moving closer to its goal of Internet connectivity. There are three projected activities that will need to be accomplished to reach this goal. By mid-December the first activity, the wiring infrastructure, will be completed. The second activity is the purchase of network hardware and software that will allow the connection to the wiring infrastructure and provide connectivity within TSUD. The third activity is the selection of an Internet Service Provider that will provide a secure connection to the Internet and connectivity to the rest of the world. If all goes well, the remaining two activities should be completed by the end of Winter Quarter 1997.

In the Spring Quarter 1997, a number of events are planned. The first being Internet access for students, faculty, and staff. Implementation of e-mail accounts for faculty and staff with student e-mail accounts are planned for Summer Quarter 1997. By the start of Summer Quarter 1997, the TSUD home page will be on the Internet. This home page will consist of information from the various administrative functions and the different academic college/schools. By the Fall Quarter 1997, TSUD should be able to incorporate Internet-based delivery of selected academic courses.

Access to the Internet will have a significant impact on how work is accomplished and how faculty and staff interact with students. It is the hope of the Network Project Team (Techno-Team) that everyone is looking forward to the challenges and changes that will come with the Information Age.

DR. HALEY JOINS STAFF

Dr. Tina DeLaine Haley joins the TSUD staff as director of Extended University. Her major responsibilities in this position focus on Weekend University and interim sessions.

Originally from Clayton, North Carolina, located just southeast of Raleigh, Haley received her bachelor's degree in sociology from North Carolina State University. While pursuing her master's degree from Campbell University in Buies Creek, NC, she worked at Mount Olive College and North Carolina Wesleyan College. After completion of the master's degree, she worked at Slippery Rock University. She most recently served as director of MultiEthnic Services at Austin Peay State University in Clarksville, TN. In August 1996, she completed her doctoral work and received the Ed.D. in the area of administration and supervision from Tennessee State University in Nashville.

Dr. Michael Malone, TSUD president, said, "We are fortunate to have Dr. Haley as a part of the TSUD family. Her analytical skills, enthusiasm, and dedication to students will serve her well in this very important position. I personally feel we have much to do to increase our weekend and interim offerings, and Dr. Haley is up to the challenge to improve TSUD's service to the community."

Dr. Tina Haley

Dr. Haley says that she hopes to make weekend classes and interim classes more accessible for students. "I would like to increase the number of weekend offerings so that a student would be able to receive a degree by attending TSUD only on the weekends," she said. "I will work toward increasing offerings during the interim sessions so that time will not be a prohibitive factor for students," she added.

Dr. Haley is an avid athlete and enjoys participating in basketball, softball, tennis, and racquetball. Her other athletic interests revolve around TSU football where her husband, Andrea, is the defensive line coach for the Troy State Trojans. She and Andrea reside in Troy.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

In a recent article appearing in the American Council on Education journal, Educational Record, Bill Gates of Microsoft fame opined, "The integration of technology into higher education is creating opportunities for educators to think in entirely new ways about how to define the focus of study, how to provide access to information, what analytical tools are appropriate, how students will report and distribute information." He concludes by saying, "These basic learning processes likely will not change with the information revolution. What will change is how students and faculty go about accomplishing these tasks." (emphasis mine)

It is the "how" question that I addressed in my fall opening of school comments. The unique mission of our university elevates to another critical level the discussion of "how" we as a learning community make the necessary changes in our processes.

We teach an older population who see higher education as their personal "step up" in the world. Our students demand that we as a learning community anticipate the issues and trends of the near future and analyze and synthesize these trends into our curriculum, pedagogy, and student services. Better said, we cannot and should not do things the old ways because they worked for us in the past or because that was the way we were taught. This way of thinking was wrong then and is wrong now!

Technology offers us the tools to do what we do better. Who better understands the power of information? We as a faculty thrive on information and its proper dissemination. The Internet, intranet, and the world wide web connections give us information on demand beyond anything our mentors and their mentors could imagine.

So folks, when we have the new capabilities our Techno-team has worked so hard to bring us, what will we do with it? I challenge myself to be first in line to use this new power to be a better administrator, faculty member, and life long learner. I challenge you to do the same!

ANNOUNCING: INTERNET II

An agreement has been reached in the academic community to develop a national network for higher education independent of the Internet. This would not replace the present Internet but would provide the benefits of the Internet without the overwhelming traffic and congestion now present. The new network would provide high speed links between participating universities, but other traffic would travel as before. It is expected that advances on Internet II would ultimately be incorporated into the Internet through upgrades. The original 34 major universities in the agreement have already been joined by 8 additional schools, including Emory University in Atlanta. Other universities are expected to join the effort, which will be financed partially with membership fees. Internet II would also be supported by corporate donations and federal funding. President Clinton has recently announced he would push for 500 million dollars of federal funding over the next five years to support the program.

FROM THE TSUD FAMILY

Dear TSUD Faculty and Staff:
Thank you for the beautiful reception and all the kindnesses you showed me upon my retirement. But most of all thank you for the opportunity to work with you since those long ago days at Fort Rucker. Love and prayers for you as you continue the work.

Mary Ann Brown

Thanks for the balloon while Russ was sick. Your concern and helping hand mean a lot to us.

Scot and Susan Craig

Dear Courtesy Committee,

Thank you so much for the card and plant you sent me during my recent hospitalization. Spending a few nights in a hospital was a new life experience for me (ugh!) and your thoughtful gift was deeply appreciated.

Bud Borders

Your kindness was a real bright spot that made my day — Thanks a lot!
Thank you very much for the flowers. They were truly a "bright spot" in the week!

TSU Signs Pact With Russian University

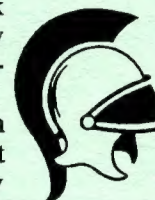

Troy State University is proud to announce an agreement struck between itself and Vyatka State Pedagogical (Teacher's) University (VSPU) in Russia.

The agreement was formally signed by Chancellor Jack Hawkins, Jr., and is a further extension of a cooperation now two years old. The agreement will focus on five main objectives.

First, the two schools will seek to start a Russian-American educational program including a Russian studies program at TSU and a section on American language, literature and history at VSPU.

Second, the agreement would create a bachelor's degree program for Russian students at TSU. Thirdly, the agreement would organize exchange programs between the two universities for graduate students. Post-graduate students would also be included in the program.

The program would facilitate all joint projects into various grant programs. Finally, the agreement would call for writing and publishing joint textbooks and educational materials on education, Russian and English languages and literature, and history. The agreement would also call for joint scientific research and publication.

TSUM Fall Graduation

Fall graduation for Troy State University Montgomery (TSUM) was held December 10, 1996, at 7:00 p.m. at the Davis Theatre for the Performing Arts. During this ceremony, 274 students received their diplomas. General Will Hill Tankersley was the graduation speaker.

General Tankersley is vice chairman of the Board of Directors of Sterne, Agee & Leach, Inc., investment bankers and members of the New York and American Stock Exchanges. Born in Montgomery, he attended Marion Institute, studied at the Citadel, and graduated from the United States Military Academy. He later earned a degree in economics from the School of Business at Auburn University.

Marketing Team Convenes

The TSUD Marketing Team is underway with identifying internal and external means of improving the overall marketing avenues at TSUD. The Team is taking a creative and loose approach to its first few meetings--accepting any input from members as relevance. "We will take a more focused approach in future meetings as we begin to identify relevant, doable activities," said Tony Whetstone, chair.

Possible activities range from TSUD faculty and staff participating as high school commencement speakers to ways to seek additional distance education delivery methods.

The Marketing Team members are Farrow Burks, Renee' Green, Dr. Tina Haley, David Johnson, Dr. Victoria Morin, Dr. Kumar Rallapalli, Andrew Rivers, and Bob Willis. Contact any of these members with marketing ideas you may have.

Look for more to come from The TSUD Marketing Team.
